Introduction

Many cigar frontmarks celebrate the places where they were born—great cigar cities such as Havana and Miami. The Angelenos cigar may be the first to honor a city where cigars are not produced, but enjoyed with gusto and enthusiasm matched nowhere else. I am referring of course to Los Angeles, home of many of the world's most passionate cigar aficionados.

Countless movie stars, titans of business, musicians, athletes, writers, and politicians call Los Angeles their home. The city's flourishing population exhibits an unmatched love of life, inspired both by the culture that surrounds them and by the natural beauty and idyllic climate of their chosen home.

It is no wonder they have so fervently embraced the cigar, a product conceived by artisans, formulated from painstakingly cultivated natural ingredients, rolled by skilled torcedors using techniques passed down from generation to generation—and unsurpassed in the subtleties and satisfaction of flavor it offers.

Every year, I co-host a charity cigar dinner for children in need at Hotel Bel-Air with my dear friend, Joe Mantegna, a world-renown actor and cigar lover. When I sit down for dinner in the front lawn of Hotel Bel-Air where our charity cigar dinner is held, I am so touched by the passion and enthusiasm of the attendees for cigars and helping the poor children in our communities.

Despite the passion and enthusiasm of the Angelenos for cigars, this is the city where many anti-smoking measures have started. We must hold our annual charity cigar dinner in the front lawn because we are not allowed to enjoy our cigars indoors. Furthermore, California has one of the highest state tobacco taxes in the U.S.

Angelenos cigars are created to salute the connoisseurs around the world who, despite all these obstacles, continue to enjoy cigars with incomparable passion. We might not like some of the things our governments do, but we must still love our communities and countries. Cigars create camaraderie among us, and I am so sure that this world will be a better place if we can share our cigars together.

Angelenos cigars, which are made with Ecuadorian wrapper and Dominican filler and binder, combine the smoothness and sophistication of the City of Angels with a touch of the boldness that made the city what it is today.

I hope you enjoy these exquisite cigars and join your fellow cigar connoisseurs in celebrating our lives. In my salutation to Joe Mantegna who has helped so many children in need by co-hosting our annual charity cigar dinner, Angelenos cigars will make a donation to Barbara Sinatra Children's Center (www.sinatracenter.org) which has been helping sexually abused children since 1986.

ANGELENOS ROBUSTO

A well-rolled cigar with an oily, golden wrapper and substantial draw. First puffs show wood and salt, balanced by emerging floral notes and a touch of linen. The finish is sweet and savory.

90 ★★ ★

159 x 17,5 - 6 1/4 x 44

An attractive Lonsdale that exhibits perfect draw characteristics, with plenty of cinnamon and nutmeg, a hint of black pepper and a nice spicy kick. A harmonious aromatic blend, which comes into its own in this rather mild cigar.

90 ★★ ★

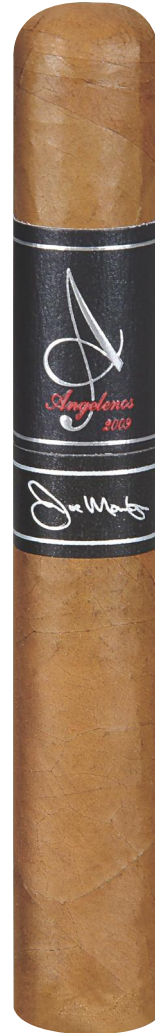

140 x 21,4 - 5 1/2 x 54

At first this cigar presents a sweet basic note under refreshing citrus notes, a gentle pinch of black pepper and earthy aromas. During the course of the smoke piquant notes gain the upper hand and the cigar becomes increasingly more flavorsome.

At the request of Joe Mantegna, Angelenos cigars will donate a portion of the sales proceeds to the Barbara Sinatra Children's Center (www.sinatracenter.org), which has been helping sexually abused children since 1986.

Angelenos Robusto Gordo JM (54 x 5 1/2)

In 1967, I was a junior-college student in Chicago with two passions, cars and cigars. I was able to satisfy the one when I noticed a 1947 Buick with a "For Sale" sign on it not far from my family's apartment. For $225, I was able to purchase what was an antique even then.

Looking back on that 40-year segment of my life, I now appreciate how much has changed and how much has stayed the same. Call it wisdom or dumb luck, but the decision to store that first car in my friend's barn for more than 25 years paid off. I was able to eventually have it shipped out to California from the Midwest and have it completely restored. No longer having to face the harsh winters of Chicago, I decided to "California-ize" it, complete with a camel-tan paint job to replace the black, and a tan-and-chocolate leather interior to replace the wool fabric of the original.

It is a true L.A. cruiser now, which grows in beauty each and every year. I love living in Southern California with its rich culture and year-round sunny days. Whenever I get a chance, I like to fire up my Buick, light up an Angelenos cigar and cruise around town. Life has been good to me, so I try give back when I can.

I find myself recalling a quote I read from the great cyclist Lance Armstrong, a quote I try to live by: "Every day's a good day, and some days are great."
